The Woods Game (or Catch The Smokers)

- a basic systems game

1. Object

Move figure "A" into such a position that the identity of those in figure "B" can separately be determined.

2. Terminology

3. Forces

4. Complications

Figure "C": a tree; not as obvious for authority figure to investigate, but not as effective as concealment.

5. Windfalls.

Go on to next set of instructions...

6-7 Oh no, not another first period with Mr. Ross! Get out the No-Doze. Why doesn't he ever sit down at the desk? He must have learned to lean on desks at college, who knows? For those who didn't know him, Ross could have been unexciting, the guy who can look through all the excuses; talking in that quiet tone of his; bringing up rare facts every now and then. Good old James G. Blaine, how could he ever lose? We can't help it if the bells don't work Mr. Ross, this he understands... calmly. But for some of those who knew him a little bit more; Mr. Ross was the attentive listener, the calm support during those hectic admission days. Hey Mr. Ross! Do you have a minute? "Sure," another one of his lines, "Oh no, you don't want to go to THAT college; you wouldn't like it." So, Mr. Ross the rock... through thick and thin he stands and will go on standing... or leaning; calmly suggesting new methods to keep from flunking in his class on those wonderful S. A. T.'S. Thank you Mr. Ross.

8-abc Happiness can't be hidden! It is uncanny how each graduating class - and the year in which that class winds up its undergraduate career - possesses a character all its own. This is so much so that we can accurately describe it. So the Class of 1972 could be called a remarkably "sociable" class, a "happy" class. Several years ago a very talented senior surveyed the ways of our schools as they were then, and said "We have no time to talk with each other." So we mended our ways and the Great Hall became the social center of our universe. SOME study was done as well as a lot of soul-searching. The result has been a good experience in coeducation, in friendship, and enough all-round happiness for the rest of us to note it. College will mean much to you. Those four years CAN be the happiest so far. I hope they will be as happy and as full of good growth as the last four years which ended here have been.

David Leech
Headmaster

10-11 The ominous cloud observing, drifting in the background. The shadowy figure, watching, charting. Distantly they smile and exchange comments, news, and pleasantries and then offer support to the structure - the structure that without them would fail. The board of Trustees

18-19 "But Rumania supported Galicia to Sevastopol, remember? Sevastopol stayed and Bulgaria attacked Rumania. Attack, support, stay, bounce! It's all just one big bounce! "If only I hadn't gotten bounced out of Burgungy." "Let's show moves. I don't trust you." "That crazy Austria-Hungary, they're so gullible you can tell them anything." "The secret to the game is to find an ally by the second move, then back-stab him on the sixth. If you survive that long you can't lose."

20-21 "Hey, you going to the dance on Saturday?" "Oh maybe... I guess I'll go." "I'll see ya there!" Saturday night, you beg a ride out of your parents or talk your friends into driving out to the school. When you arrive the band has already started. The Common Hall throbs with the music and the floor vibrates. Boys and girls alike, are standing around trying to look nonchalant; nobody is dancing and yet all want to. Finally a boy saunters over and asks one of the girls to dance. Then the others decide, what the hell, I might as well dance too. Soon the dance floor is so crowded you can hardly move and the temperature starts rising. The band calls an intermission. Everyone disperses for the drinking fountains and the cookies. So it goes until you think you will drop. Then the last chord is played, the last drum beat struck and silence reigns. "How did ya like the dance?" "Oh, it was a bummer." "Really? I thought it was out-of-sight?"

22-25 "Will someone get the phone?" "Where's the vacuum? Oh well, I'll just say I did it." "Another housemother?" "The mail here yet?" "This is actually dinner?" "Remember to sign out!" "What movie shall we say we are going to tonight?" You can always tell a boarder. They are the ones with the neat clothes who are always so wide awake and cheerful. Maybe the food is getting to them?

26-29 where the hell is Barber; he's on now! You want us to learn all this in two weeks... You are joking aren't you?... You're not! It's snowing!... We don't have school but we do have rehearsal... Is our director coming today? The party at Seaborn's is the only reason I went out for the play. Long hours of hard work pay off. A fantastic production is the results.

34-35 Arguments. Suggestions. Raised eyebrows. Counter arguments. Conservativism. Liberalism. Disgusted sights. Interest. Over - interested. Mother's apathy or Understanding and Condemning. A Mixture. A Conglomeration. Student Council.

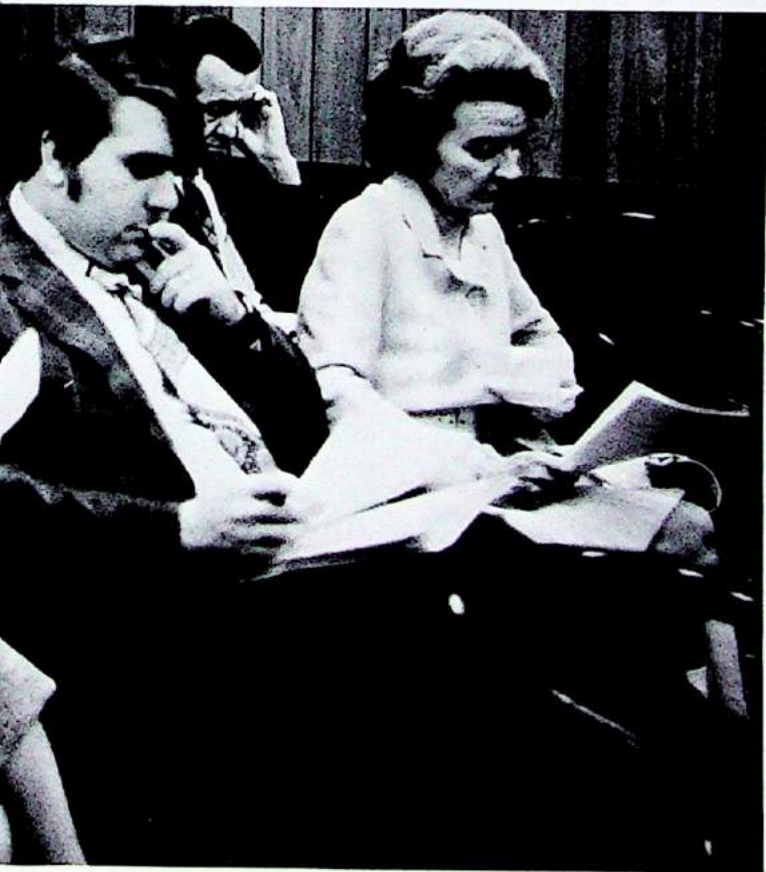

36-37 Look at all that white space; think of all the pictures you could put in that space. Who is handing out the paper? Mrs. Froman needs 200 copies for alum. Birkmeyer get a dictionary! Mark, I NEED some pictures, quick! This year the HALLMARK wiped out the rally squad! Can you top that next year Noack? He wants me to show all the layout sheets to the whole student body for approval and then send it to the printer... I'm going to go nuts! School publications... a way that students can express their ideas and feelings.

40-41 The Natural Outdoorsman. Oh no, this pack is unmovable! Guess I'll have to leave my tape recorder, electric toothbrush, and Oxford Dictionary here at the car. # ? ! * @, I forgot my boots, what AM I going to do ?! And all my eggs broke, they're sogging up my extra clothes. Yuk! ... Now if I can only fix the strap on this dumb pack, maybe I'll be ready. At this rate even Nelson will beat me to the base camp.. Talk about being slow. Blessed, I wish this trip was over.

44-45 "Willie, what time does the bus leave ?" "First one there gets the 37." "Carrie never misses one going by." "We didn't lose, tied 0-0!" "Hot water anyone? ... But they said they were going to give us lunch." The third year of field hockey was the best one yet. We understood the game more and became further aware of people's abilities. The fine points are beginning to be understood and maybe next year we will beat Catlin.

46-49 Skull Session #48B Coach Hicks speaking: "Okay men. I have very little to say. We all realize the importance of this game and I think you all sense it as much as I do - there's a feeling of intensity among each and every one of you. Now here's what I'll be looking for. Starting with the Super Weeny*, we'll move right through the line-up discussing what I want from each of you individually. (15 minutes later) To sum it up men, we only go out there for one reason. And if I can't have 120% from each of you don't even bother to walk out onto that field; you'll just be letting each other down. Remember, I want fearlessness, heart, perpetual motion, constant chatter and, most importantly, GOALS! Lots of doggies*... I've got a lot of faith in you, this is one hell of a club and you've come too far to let yourselves down now. So let's have a little Houffin Hauffer and then get out there to do a job." *Super Weeny - team name for Miles Miller, the goalie. *doggie - team slang word for goal.

50-51 Pant, pant, pant, oh my God, another mile and a half. Pant, pant, the BDH pushers, pant, pant, pant, on their way to another... Well, pant, pant, why are they whistling at us? Pant, pant, it was worth it, we got a free dinner, pant, pant...

52-53 Not much to say about it. We lost every game but at least we got out of P.E. for it.

54-55 What are we doing up here? Hardworking, fearless BDH ski team. Athletic recognition goes to them. The switch from fledging team to cohesive body. What a change! Through fair and foul, rain or shine, the team skis on. Considering all of the pressure, they're doing a grand job. Mr. Hutchinson announces, "The ski team etc..." Well, Mr. Hutchinson, heheh, keep up the announcements; the Ski team will keep up the work; we'll keep up the good hope! What are you guys doing up there anyway?

56-57 A few old memories for the basketball team, or those bodacious fools, as the players might have heard before. To those who were told to get it on with the steps, remember, it's not if you win the game, but if you get out without any injuries. The crippled class of '72. Great guys, great. Whatever happened to the rally squad?

58-59 "Hey! Whenever I go to my knees he bites me!" "Well, bite 'em back." Somewhere along the day the coach would mumble something about his contact lens. Gotta find it, gotta find it. It's ok, I found it! the pieces anyway. Here scrape 'em off my feet. At 4:30, the coach would pull together the team, and get down to the brass tacks. "Ok you guys, we have a match tomorrow night, and I wanna come home victorious. Ken, remember the crossface. Brent, watch the takedown; Bishop, let's get a pin this time. Peter and Hall, can we count on twelve points tomorrow? Curren, take it easy on your guy. Jow, Pete, and Craig, Kill 'em! Good luck, men, and remember, you are ALL ONE TEAM, so get it on!..... Where's Takashi?

60-61 Tension mounting with each swift return, expectant muscles straining, guessing, hoping that the opponent will miss and that the relief felt at the end of a match will be victorious. (But then again as the OES teams know, one shouldn't always expect victory. Sometimes it's just enough for the match to end).

62-63 The participants striving through practice toward the point where the body no longer limits and the mind's goals can be fulfilled.

64-65 They tried to stamp it out, more out of lack of opponents, money and Catlin Gable, but they couldn't keep it down. There was too much of a uniqueness and individuality that Baseball America couldn't offer. It was an unmatched strength, and lacrosse had it.

Good-bye baseball,
Until we meet again.

THE WILL TO SUCCEED:

"Ours is, by far, the greatest and most powerful nation the world has ever witnessed. It is characterized by wealth, involved in struggle and strained by its own growth. But most of all it lays bare the brightest of vistas for personal as well as collective achievement. And for the most part, this wealth of opportunity is directly related to our unique and dynamic system of free enterprise. For it is this system which enables each of us to work for and to reach the goals of our maximum potential.

As the future leaders of our nation the following quotation offers an enlightening picture of what awaits you.

'Success . . . does not depend upon genius. Any young man of ordinary intelligence who is normally sound and not afraid to work should succeed in spite of obstacles and handicaps if he plays the game fairly and keeps everlastingly at it.'

—J. C. Penney

And so it is. As America's youth, you stand at the crossroads of achievement and success. Our system permits it. Only your determination will reach it."

This is a different yearbook. When I say different, I mean different from past publications. We have tried to break away from as many of the formalities that have besieged past yearbooks as possible.

Underclass and faculty photographs were informal because we felt that an informal shot was more natural and showed more of what each personality was really like. The book is mostly made up of photographs; the articles have personal feelings written into them and we hope you are able to relate to them.

I would like to thank all of the members of the staff and Betty Wilcox, our advisor, who have donated their time, effort and ideas to make the publication of this book possible. I especially want to thank Elsa Erceg, for without her encouragement and ideas I never would have made it.
