EDITORIAL

Once again a graduating class is going out into a troubled world — one full of chaos and hate and fury. It is not a promising world, but it is our world, and we are prepared to face it. At the Hall we have received the background and the education that has helped train us for this great step in our lives. We are willing to face the world and make it ours.

This year marks a new phase at St. Helen's Hall, for it has been under new leadership. But the Hall still retains its high ideals and standards, and we have received the same Christian education which is characteristic of our school.

We leave with a feeling of regret — that we must leave friends we have made and all the fun and adventure that accompanies high school life. But we are grateful for the preparation that we have been given and are ready to go forth into a new chapter of our lives.

THE EDITOR.

EDITORIAL

In a modern world characterized by change, poets and writers seek untiringly for originality of expression. The strange, the startling, the horrible; these are the things for which they search. The poet, in his thirst for imagery, may visualize in the tinkling laughter of a little child a mighty roaring voice condemning the universe to eternal chaos.

Throughout the world the writer journeys on his quest for that which is new; over a country road with her graceful arms entwined about the infant spring, into a dingy alley choking the breath from a year grown old; skillfully drawing from these a strange new portrait of life, a portrait that is dynamic, perhaps, or haunting, but has no warmth.

For only things that are old and cherished can have real warmth. Into the hearts of men since time began expressions of emotion have grown, and they are not to be replaced by the erotic products of a modern unfathomable mind. One cannot speak of love and of hate, of life and of death as happenings to be interpreted. They are real, and simple, and so must they be spoken of with simplicity.

Thus it is with parting — life itself is a series of farewells, and leaving that which is beloved is nothing but a human occurrence. Sorrow it contains but not bitterness, and the emotions it signifies can be found in only one word — good-bye.

OUR CHAPEL

Each morning the students and faculty of St. Helen's Hall gather together for a brief period of worship in the stillness of our Chapel.

This simple but beautiful service is made even more beautiful and inspirational by the presence of memorial gifts, such as the sanctuary lamps, the altar, the pulpit, and the mother-of-pearl processional cross. The organ was presented to us by Mrs. Walter B. Beebe in memory of her husband. Its melodius strains will always be a remembrance of Sister Katherine Angela, who revealed to us the beauty and spirit of music.

These few moments of quiet devotion that introduce each new day are truly helpful and appreciated by all who attend.

CLASS HISTORY

The class of '45 originated back in 1933 with the entrance of Molly Clair in the first grade. She was joined in 1939 and '40 by Pat Pearson and Sue Garrigus. Most of us came in 1941, our freshman year, but others came through the years until our enrollment was completed in January, 1945 by the entrance of Berniece Hoyt.

It is with sorrow that we leave the Hall and the friends we have made, but we leave with a feeling of gratitude for the rich, full background given us, and for the education we have received that has prepared us to face the world and its many problems.

THE LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT OF THE CLASS OF 1945

- I, June Anderson, leave my possessions, as usual, scattered all over the school.
- I, Molly Clair, leave to Rae Ballif a piece of gum, in payment for all the pieces she gave me during study hall.
- I, Lois Cloud, leave my ability to type to Elizabeth Malarkey.
- I, Ann Conklin, leave my ability for having fascinating experiences to Jo Ann Bendshadler.
- I, Malvena Evenson, leave my enormous appetite to "Hobbie" Hobson — not that she needs it.
- I, Sue Garrigus, leave my ability to be first(?) out of school at 3:30 p.m. to Barbara Jean Henton.
- I, Frances Hibbard, leave my many week-ends at the Hall to Ruth Ann Ferris. All she needs is an excuse.
- I, Phyllis Holdman, leave my ability to study diligently to Sylvia Barendrick.
- I, Berniece Hoyt, leave the woes and horrors — all of them — of Senior chemistry to Marilyn Bruce and Gloria Myers.
- I, Catherine McRae, leave my faithful alarm clock to Florene Inglis, so that she may rise bright and early.
- I, Sally Meyers, leave my locker including the Varga pictures to Elaine Walker, in hopes that she will appreciate the art.
- I, Joanna Millett, leave my Latin II book to Mary Jean Turner, with the hopes that she will do better than I did.
- I, Dorothy Mount, leave my delicate frame to Carmen Miesen.
- I, Patricia Pearson, leave my expert singing ability to Sally Mae Peabody.
- I, Donna Rankin, leave my sound character, sturdy body, and fine religious attitude to Gloria Myers.
- I, June Rhodes, leave the dust, the jar of peaches, and the siphoning hose under my bed to Mac.
- I, Joan Saari, leave my small feet to anyone who wants them.
- I, Yolanda Schultz, leave my horseback riding ability to Charlotte Montag.
- I, Betty Shipe, leave my ability to chatter to Ann Wilkins. No doubt it will get her into trouble, too.
- I, Mary Nadine Snellstrom, leave my ability to stay off detention to Marilyn Morse.
- I, Patty Stone, leave my Senior dignity to Trudy Van Dusen.
- I, Joyce Taylor, leave my two goldfish, Leo and Cleo, to Jo Ann Bendshadler for she bears such a striking resemblance to them.
- I, Susan Teague, leave my supply of stale jokes to Pody Fitzmaurice to add to her collection.
- I, Pat Walker, leave my ability to play the piano to Ellen Meyers.
- I, Bobbie Wollum, leave my ability to be locked in a locker to Elizabeth Kelly, with the hopes that Miss Landquist will be so kind as to let her out.
- We, the class of '45, being of sound mind and body, do hereby leave our gentle Senior dignity and ability to stay out of trouble to the class of '46.

HIGH SCHOOL HONORS OF 1944

The alumnae pin is awarded annually to the Senior of good scholarship who most actively contributed to the life of the school. This honor went to Joan Lucas, and honorable mention to Patricia Bendshadler and Nancy Easter.

For the best essay on a patriotic subject in the contest conducted by the National Society of Colonial Daughters, a prize was awarded to Virginia Seale. Honorable mention in this contest was also given in the following order of excellence to: Nancy Morley, Jean Dalin, Janet Harris, Rhoda Lecocq, Edna Barnes, Janet Banks.

The Bishop's prize for outstanding work in Sacred Studies during the year went to Betsy Parker, whose name was also engraved on the Holford cup.

In appreciation of loyal and generous help in accompanying on the piano and in playing the organ for Chapel services, a gift was given to Nancy Easter.

St. Helen's Hall was again represented in the annual anthology of Northwest High School Poetry. Certificates from the editors were awarded to four students whose poems appear in the 1944 issue: Suzanne Bozorth, Patricia Hodson, Alice Ashton, Anne Carter. Honorable mention was given to poems by Virginia Vaughan and Gloria Jokstad.

A Senior who brought honor to her Alma Mater by winning the Mills College Trustee Scholarship was Betsy Parker.

St. Helen's Hall is proud of the fact that its annual, the Delphic, has many times won honors in the national year book contest conducted by the Columbia Scholastic Press Association. Last year's book was awarded a certificate for placing in the third class among the smaller private schools.

For fine work on 1944's Delphic, prizes were awarded to the following members of the staff: Joan Lucas, editor-in-chief; Betsy Parker, literary editor; Nancy Easter, business manager; Patty Bendshadler, advertising manager; and Patricia Hodson, art editor.

The school presented a gift to a Senior who finished her eleventh year at St. Helen's Hall—Patty Bendshadler.

Honors were awarded to those students who place academically in the highest tenth of the high school. These in order of achievement were:

- |                     |                     |
|---------------------|---------------------|
| 1. Yolanda Schultz  | 6. Sally Mount      |
| 2. Virginia Vaughan | 7. Carla Rebagliati |
| 3. Nancy Morley     | 8. Lois Cloud       |
| 4. Suzanne Bozorth  | 9. Joan Lucas       |
| 5. Marisu Edmonds   |                     |

Two other students would have received these testimonials except for prolonged absence. They were Jean Edmond and Betsy Parker, who receive honorable mention.

Delphic Contest — First Prize

OPUS NO. 1

Juke-box blaring "Opus No. 1",
Girls in sweaters and skirts,
Boys in jeans and plaid sox.
Bright nail polish,
Hair swaying to dance tempo.
Red lights, green lights, blue
Lights casting deep shadows.
Cokes and hot dogs,
Snatches of conversation.
After this,
Bombs, death, destruction,
Fox holes, Purple Heart, screaming
Shells,
Tokyo, Berlin, Bataan,
Terror, heart break, courage.
Waiting.

CAROL MAYS, V.

Delphic Contest — Honorable Mention

SPRING

A little bud pokes up its head;
A bird begins to twitter,
The animals tumble out of bed,
And the wind becomes less bitter.
The snow melts into a musical brook,
Which runs into a river.
A girl lays down her heavy book,
And goes riding in a flivver.
The "fever" takes its yearly toll
Of all who take a "fling",
And classes seem extremely droll;
Because, you see, it's Spring!

MALVENA EVENSON, VI.

THE MAN WHO WAITED

I cannot say how long he had been waiting — perhaps for a great while, I do not know. He had come with footsteps that fell as soft as the wilted petals of the cherry blossom that falls from the tree when the spring is gone.

He was not a very young man, nor was he very old, but his eyes were sad with the loneliness of one who wanders through the night in search of that which does not exist.

Long he stood in the darkness, the shadows curled about him. He did not speak or move, and his breath came in haunting little sighs that clung to him though their sound had ceased.

He was waiting for someone to come to him out of the night — someone he did not really expect at all. Silently I watched him, and I thought upon his face which held the drama of countless men.

It was not the drama of a greedy death who snatches from the arms of the hungry; nor was it of bitterness with its yellowed fangs biting deep into the core of humanity. Rather it was the drama of loneliness written in wistful lines upon the face of a man, of unknowing sadness floating through his life.

These are the things I thought of while I watched the man who waited, his life filled only with the tears he could never shed, as he turned and walked slowly into the night—alone.

CONTRIBUTED.

THE INQUIRER

What are you, spring?
 A daffodil, a daisy gay?
 A singing brook, a child at play?
 Or fly you from a nest of birds
 Winging out to sea?
 A sunset too glorious for words?
 You, oh spring, are all these things to me.

What are you, spring?
 A rainbow bright, a sky of blue?
 A shimmering lake, the glistening dew?
 Are you the beckoning star
 That all lost sailors see?
 Or a wheeling gull on a sandy bar?
 You, oh spring, are all these things to me.

JOANN COHN, III.

THE FIR TREE

Majestic, towering stands
 The lone fir tree.
 Midst gnarled oaks and
 Hemlocks three,
 Withering pines, graceful spruce,
 Timid willows.
 These, and others dwell
 In the forest.
 But none compare, none
 Shall be—
 Like the king of the forest,
 The lone fir tree.

SHIRLEY BARTON, III.

THE SILVERY PATH

The pale silvery moon
 Makes a path that gleams;
 I would love to walk
 Along her shining beams.
 If I could walk
 Upon her shining beams,
 I would walk to the moon
 And remember only dreams.
 But in the morning
 I'd walk down,
 Back to my tiny, tiny home
 In the silent, sleeping town.

SELLA WINEBERG, I.

LITTLE LADY LADY-BUG

Little lady lady-bug,
Who lives in that big house
Seems to be as quiet
As quiet as a mouse.

Her only pet is a little cat,
Of course a pussy willow,
Who chases a little hickory cat
Up and down her pillow.

Then there's a little walnut dog
As cunning as could be;
Oh I wish, I wish, I wish
That they would come home with me.

MARILYN BERNSTEIN, GRADE VI.

FAIRIES

At night when I'm in bed
I see fairies at my head
Some in yellow, some in gold;
Some are young, and some are old;
Some are soldiers brave and bold,
Dainty dancers all untold,
Marching in parade.

ROBERTA KNIGHT, GRADE V.

FISH

I'd like to be a fish sometime
I'd live in a little brook;
Only I'd hate to be caught
On a fishing hook.

It would be nice to float around
With nothing else to do.
But I think I'd rather be
What I am, wouldn't you?

ROBERTA KNIGHT, GRADE V.

STUDENT BODY

PATRICIA WALKER

The year of 1944-45 may truly be considered a successful one for St. Helen's Hall. Overcoming obstacles and minor disagreements we, the students, have come to a better understanding among ourselves and our advisers. The officers of the student body, who have led us on, deserve the better part of the credit.

Pat Walker was elected President in the fall election, with the following girls in other offices: Jean Edmonds, Vice-President; Marisu Edmonds, Secretary; Yolanda Schultz, Treasurer. Pat Walker was re-elected for President in the spring term, to the satisfaction of one and all, while Yolanda Schultz, too, was our choice again for Treasurer. Pat and Yolanda have done much to make this a successful year. Those elected for the remaining offices in the spring were: Barbara Christopherson, Vice-President; Sally Mount, Secretary. The cabinet, which is a representative group of girls that meet and discuss any problems that may come up and also have the privilege of nominating the candidates for student body offices, consists of the student body officers and members elected from each of the classes as follows: Corinne Haller, Freshman; Jacqueline Downing, Sophomore; Jo Ann Bendchadler, Junior; Patty Stone, Senior.

Regular business meetings were held often, and during the year many prominent speakers have come to St. Helen's Hall and have broadened our knowledge considerably. One of the most outstanding was Mrs. L. R. Craighill, who, with her husband, Bishop Craighill, has lived in China for twenty years. She made us realize how lucky we are to be in America, for she gave an interesting account of the hardships girls of our age have had to face in China and what they have to go through while trying to get an education. We were also honored to have Lt. Commander Millett speak to us and give us a picture of the South Pacific fighting front and tell us of what the medical unit has to do on the battle fronts.

The student body, in keeping with the tradition, made donations at Thanksgiving for those less fortunate than we. The girls were also generous in their contributions to the War Fund campaign and to the Red Cross campaign.

Not all has been seriousness and work, however, for there were several very successful dances held throughout the year, and other activities sponsored by the different classes. In November the Senior class presented an informal Sadie Hawkins dance, and the student body sponsored a formal dance in January which was called "Blue Heaven". The Junior class gave a carnival, and also a dance in honor of the May Court, on "Moonlight Bay".

This school year, really a beginning in the new phase of St. Helen's Hall, has come successfully to a close. Its success is due to the fact that everyone has cooperated with the student body officers and faculty in carrying out their endeavors, and we hope that the next year will be as happy and successful as this one has been.

HOME FRONT ACTIVITIES

The Hall's war effort began this year with the opening of the War Stamp booth. The girls have contributed generously, too. In the Sixth War Loan we exceeded by fifty per cent our quota of four thousand dollars, in both bonds and stamps. Through the sale of these bonds and stamps the school has purchased a jeep and a scout car.

The Tunesters have also played their part in the war effort by planning colorful programs presented to the boys at Barnes Hospital. A most appreciative audience, too!

The Red Cross has played a very prominent role in the activities at the Hall. Under the capable supervision of Mrs. Roy, the art teacher, all classes have contributed time and effort.

The Juniors and Seniors have done more than their part this year. At Christmas, they filled Christmas boxes for the soldiers and sailors, and boxes for the children in the liberated countries, who would otherwise have no Christmas at all. Later in the year they filled education boxes for children of the occupied countries that are trying to set up schools and are badly in need of supplies. And at monthly meetings, they have made centerpieces for tables at Barnes.

Those in the art classes have made very clever and useful toys for the children at the Shrine Hospital. And the Freshmen and Sophomores at their monthly meetings have also made tray favors for the patients at Barnes, which are well received.

The Red Cross Drive was generously contributed to by all, and orchids to the Freshmen for being first to be one hundred per cent in getting their money in.

This year has been a prosperous one for all, and one of the best ways to show our loyalty to our country, and that we appreciate what our boys on the fighting fronts are going through, is by doing the most that we possibly can here on our home front. Nothing we can do is too small or too great if it will help to end this war and all the suffering it causes.

QUEEN: Patricia Pearson.

PRINCESSES: June Anderson, Roberta Wollum, Sally Meyers, Joyce Taylor, Patricia Stone, Dorothy Mount.

MISTRESS OF CEREMONIES: Carla Rebagliati.

MAY FETE

This year the May Fete, one of the oldest traditions of St. Helen's Hall, was presented in its usual beauty.

Reigning over all was Queen Patricia Pearson with her court, Sally Meyers, Joyce Taylor, June Anderson, Dorothy Mount, Roberta Wollum, and Patricia Stone. The princesses, clad in blending pastel shades, contrasted well with the Queen in white. The pageant was beautiful against the green background of the garden in which the ceremony was held.

The crowning of Her Majesty took place in the afternoon, ably performed by the Mistress of Ceremonies, Carla Rebagliati. This was followed by a pageant, "On Freedom Street", presented by the Glee Club and Dramatics department, for the entertainment of the Queen and her court.

A dance, in honor of the Court was held that night, marking the climax of a memorable day.

SPANISH CLUB

"El sombrero de tres picos" (the three-cornered hat) is the newly organized Spanish Club at St. Helen's Hall. Its motto is "amistad, lealtad, y saber" (friendship, loyalty, and learning), or in Greek, "alpha, lambda, sigma".

The members have found a suitable room for their meetings and are earnestly painting and re-decorating it.

Since the Freshmen have originated the club, they wish to be well established before opening the membership to others. The officers are: Carolyn Krengel, President; Jacqueline Greene, Vice-President; Elizabeth Sholdebrand, Secretary; Jane Schlesinger, Treasurer; and Beverly Hershey, "Lieutenant" at Arms. Mrs. Helen Snipper is the capable adviser.

The club may be newly organized, but nevertheless shows great promise and a great opportunity for those interested in the Spanish language and the Latin American countries.

HALLTONIAN

A good school paper is a very necessary part of any school. The Halltonian is the mimeographed news bulletin put out by the girls themselves every month.

The Halltonian staff, ably guided by Miss Robinson and Mrs. Snipper, and the editor Phyllis Holdman, is manned by a small group of interested girls who here have an opportunity to gain practical experience in journalism. The writers, typists, mimeograph operators, and artists learn to work together to provide the school's news publication.

The goal of this year's Halltonian was to have a concise little news sheet with news of general interest, features from stock of all school talent, and class news. We hope that we have accomplished our purpose.

1. Oh, here's Sammy!!
2. We can't do it justice.
3. I got you first.
4. Going advertising??
5. Plug for Barnum & Bailey.
6. The show must go on.
7. Retreat.
8. Grinning Grable.
9. Studying? — Since when?
10. Watching' the game?
11. Eating again!?
12. Just too lazy to jump it.
13. Snobs.
14. Going someplace??
15. Love-sick?!
16. Make up your mind.

SPORTS

A quick glance at my room-mate's diary shows that the year of '44-'45 was a strenuous one in sports. Recalling the first day, we find Mrs. Gerretson, the new gym teacher, outlining the nine months with vigor of a banty-hen. And as the pages are turned, we read that in the "rec" (wreck, huh) room during the last weeks of September what should have taken place but physical exams. Outdoor activities filled the calendar as long as the warm weather held out, but then came:

Archery — the sport that after long grueling hours, the classes finally mastered. The several bows, the many arrows, the targets, and swollen wrists go with the memory of archery. What seemed at first an insurmountable task, turned out to be fun. And during the spring months, Robin Hood's pastime is always popular.

During the entire nine months of school, horseback riding at Highlands Academy was enjoyed. At the beginning of the term, riders were classed as beginners, intermediate, and advanced. With a big flurry of enthusiasm, about eighty per cent of S.H.H. donned jeans, piled into the truck, and learned the art of staying in an English saddle. Later the intermediate and advanced classes were combined. Toward February, many of the pupils had dropped out, but there was still avid interest shown in the stiffening, leg-bowing activity.

Due to the convenient proximity of the Jewish recreation center, the interest shown by the students and the consent of Miss Hershberger to teach, girls were able to indulge once a week in one of the dolphin's most favored sports—swimming. Red Cross cards were earned in beginning swimming, advanced, and life saving tests during class hours. After school the pool was destined to be filled with laughing, splashing, sputtering "ladies of S.H.H."

Into every athlete's life, fate has interposed one dreaded indulgence — calisthenics!! Who are the belles of the Hall to be slighted by fate? They too, must have their share of the tiresome torso-bending. During the time following Christmas, one could find gym classes being held in Scadding Hall with Mrs. Gerretson trying to improve the posture and poise of her charges.

Statistics show that basketball is one of America's top national sports — and like every other school in the U.S.A., your alma mater was in there pitching — longs, shorts, fouls, free throws, and all the other familiar forms. Basketball is always reliable as an activity to fill in the two required hours of gym during the week and as an after school work-out too. On Feb. 21, the Juniors sunk the Frosh with a score of 16 to 4. As a follow-up the Sophomores rang the victory bell over the mighty Seniors with a tally of 20 to 10. The championship game finally scored the Juniors beating the Sophomores, 11 to 10.

When spring finally rolled around and the rain stopped, tennis was the next sport on our list. A number of the girls have been trying to learn for many years and are still trying! Sore arms, aching backs, and stiffened limbs are all a part of the process of learning. But there is still great enthusiasm for this popular sport!

CALENDAR

- SEPTEMBER 6 brought on the opening day of school. A typical conversation — "What happens now?" "I don't know." "Where is room three?" "I don't know." "You new here?"
- SEPTEMBER 27 was the day when student democracy poked up its head and said, "Try me!!" Pat Walker was elected student body president.
- OCTOBER 2. Class elections were held.
- OCTOBER 5 was the date of the Old-Girl, New-Girl party — in other words, initiation!! You think you don't like vinegar, cough syrup, and molasses on a spoon? Try a straw!
- OCTOBER 25. A talent assembly was given in which possibilities were revealed which will some day make Hollywood look aside. (Anyway that's what we try to tell ourselves.)
- NOVEMBER 11. The first S.H.H. dance of the year, given in honor of Sadie Hawkins, by the Seniors. A sock and saddle affair with music via the phonograph.
- NOVEMBER 22-27. Students of St. Helen's Hall gave thanks for the pilgrim father who instituted the immortal turkey.
- DECEMBER 1. The Juniors blossomed forth with their annual carnival, which incidentally was a great success.
- DECEMBER 20 - JANUARY 3 found everybody dashing madly around getting tickets home, and last minute presents before Christmas vacation got officially under way.
- JANUARY 7. Sunday afternoon was the time and St. Helen's Hall was the place of the big open house given by the Bishop, Board of Trustees, and faculty. Parents and teachers found a common interest and really had a chance to become acquainted.
- JANUARY 17. Harry Fields, noted pianist, entertained us during a Wednesday morning assembly, by pounding out a few numbers in boogie woogie, plus Clair de Lune, the Fire Dance and other request numbers. Also that afternoon a large group of "polished corners" attended the matinee performance of "Othello", with Paul Robeson in the leading role.
- JANUARY 20 was the important night of the first student body formal. "Blue Heaven" was the theme, with Freddie Keller grinding out the down beat.
- JANUARY 27 - 29. Mid-term recess for three wonderful days. Everybody gladly forgot their studies and just had one swell time.
- FEBRUARY 2 found the boarders tripping the "light fantastic" at an informal dance in Scadding Hall. Canned music was used, and Hill cadets were invited.
- FEBRUARY 5. Report cards came out — need more be said?
- FEBRUARY 10. A Horizon Club dance was given at the home of Barbara Jean Henton. All said, "Let's have more of 'em!"
- FEBRUARY 11. The Juniors again gained the spotlight by giving a silver tea for their mothers. (Dear old mother — always good for another cent!)
- FEBRUARY 14 found the student body clapping heartily as the class of '45 presented a modern skit followed by a popular old-fashioned parade.

- FEBRUARY 15. Lent started and brought with it a new seriousness and purpose of thought.
- FEBRUARY 16 - 17 were the days when graduation pictures were taken, each girl grinning grimly into the camera's lens.
- MARCH 15. The Senior class presented the Co-ed Capers, resulting in as motley a collection of females as one could imagine. With the true St. Helen's spirit, guests found the popcorn ball stand the most inviting concession.
- MARCH 21 saw seven students confirmed in an impressive ceremony in our Chapel, with Bishop Dagwell officiating.
- MARCH 22. Dr. Rinehart, past president of Mills College, spoke in a very crisp and delightful manner about her recent travels in South America.
- MARCH 29 - APRIL 3 included one grand Easter vacation for which most girls had been planning since Christmas vacation.
- APRIL 9. An ordinary day, to commemorate all the days when nothing special happened, but are days which we want to remember.
- APRIL 26. The student body held a skating party at the Imperial Rink. Not that we aren't good skaters, mind you, but the floor kept hitting us in the face.
- MAY 4 was a day of riotous living, for the May Fete was in full swing, with charming Queen Pattie presiding.
- MAY 27 and twenty-five girls in white caps and gown sniffled slightly as Bishop Benjamin Dagwell appeared before them in a Baccalaureate service, which brought very near the approaching commencement.
- JUNE 2. The Junior-Senior prom proved to be a memorable event for all. Especially for the Seniors, who were in their glory.
- JUNE 4. Intelligence was rewarded and honors bestowed upon those who were outstanding students of the year.
- JUNE 5. In Trinity Church the graduation class received the diplomas which spelled the end of four years of study and fun. A happy tear or two found its way down many a smile-rounded cheek.
