EDITORIAL

As we leave St. Helen's Hall this year also with us goes the inspiration of its greatest achievements but not its spirit. Our beloved Sisters of the Order of St. John Baptist, who have so ably directed the school for forty years, have found it necessary to retire from the school's activities. Although they are leaving, the school will continue to uphold and maintain the principles that they have placed before it. Those who are to be in charge will ever keep in mind the training that students have received in the past, and they will help the Hall to keep its high standards.

Under the direction of the Sisters it has been the aim of St. Helen's Hall to offer a broad liberal education in its deepest sense. Our practical education has been correlated with a purposeful religious life teaching every girl to believe and think wisely.

In the past the Hall has always had high standards influenced by Christian ideals. As it assumes a new leadership these standards will not be changed.

Through all the degrading darkness of the world about us, the Hall will remain a guiding beacon in our hearts leading us to a peace within.

THE EDITOR.

EDITORIAL

Spring with all its sweetest of young growing things came early this year, symbolic somehow. In mid-December the leafless sprigs of climbing jasmine arrayed themselves in blossoms like tiny golden trumpets. Only a few weeks later, while autumn roses and chrysanthemums stood bedraggled and frost-bitten, pussywillow buds grew silvery-gray and fat and smooth; sweet smelling pink bells brightened the drab-looking, bushy heather; flat, white blossoms shone among the dark-green, pointed leaves of the laurastinus shrubs. Rainy February came, and with it, fragrant wild violets. The first ones were short-stemmed, I remember, and hardly more than fragments of purple. Often half-hidden by a few old brown leaves, they grew by mossy tree-trunks and under bushes whose new yellow-green leaves stood upright like tiny candles on a Christmas tree.

Beside a pond reflecting moving clouds and sky, a weeping willow turned a soft green and moved like a gauzy veil in the March wind.

In April the dogwood burst forth in glistening white flowers and stood tall and radiant among the dark woods of somber firs.

Let us do our utmost to hasten the peace which will come to the ravaged, suffering world, like the ever-returning miracle of spring over the forlorn earth.

CHAPEL

Worship is the keystone of Christian life. So it is that our Chapel has come to symbolize all that is admirable and inspiring. As our days and months at the Hall pass, we appreciate more and more the quiet beauty and simple dignity of the Morning Service.

In perfect harmony are all the memorial gifts: the altar, sanctuary lamps, pulpit, and the mother of pearl processional cross. The long-desired pipe organ was given to us by Mrs. Walter B. Beebe in memory of her husband. Its strains will ever be a remembrance of Sister Katherine Angela, who taught the girls at the Hall to love music as she did.

THE LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT OF THE CLASS OF 1944

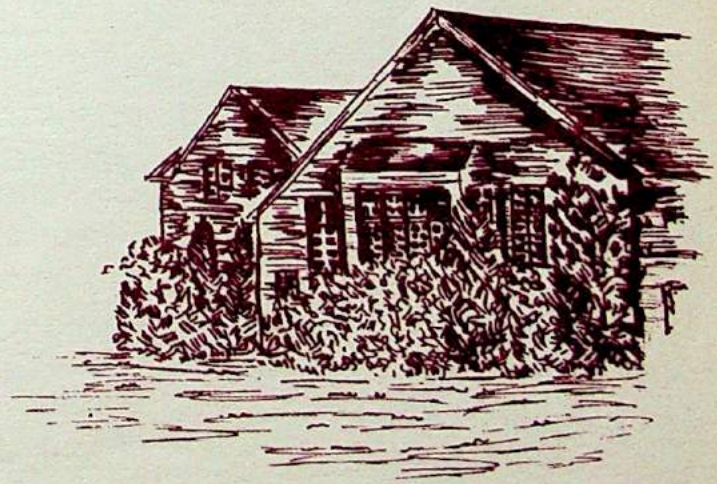

- I, Anne Stewart, will my handmirror to Pat Walker as she has practically broken it already.
- I, Joan Lucas, will my ability to stay out of court to Joan Bendshadler.
- I, Alice Ashton, leave my ability to get into trouble to Bobbie Wollum—not that she needs it!!
- I, Betsy Parker, leave my flowers to whoever needs to polish the apple with her teacher next year.
- I, Jane Byerly, will my one and only worn out tennis ball to Joie Smith.
- I, Patty Petheram, leave my ability to study on the street car to Patty Stone.
- I, Shirley Jacobs, will my long fingernails to Barbara Vannice.
- I, Margaret McLean, will my ability to miss the bus to Dorothy Mount, who needs some excuse.
- I, Dede Honeyman, leave . . . . .
- I, Patty Bendshadler, leave my singing ability to Sally "Sinatra" Mount.
- We, Nancy Easter and Donna Jo Short, leave Hortense and Mergitroide to Janet McGregor and Carney Coleman, for we feel that they have an affinity for them and will give them tender and loving care.
- I, Lee Saylor, leave my gum under every desk.
- I, Leslie Carter, will refrain from leaving anything.
- I, Virginia Vaughan, leave my bitter experience with my hair to Ann Phetteplace, as a warning.
- I, Peggy Brandstrom, being of Scotch descent, need everything I have and more.
- I, Patricia Hodson, leave my charm bracelet to the nearest chain gang.
- I, Edith Irvine, will my place in tunesters to Barbara Henton.
- I, Sue Bozorth, will my neat handwriting to Molly Clair.
- I, Patty Jack, will my argumentative ability to Joan Saari.
- I, Gloria Jokstad, will my Wallace Reducing Records and crave for Caramel Sundaes to Joan Wohlenberg.

CLASS HISTORY

The class of 1944 began back in 1934 when Patty Bendshadler entered the Lower School. In 1938 she was joined by Dede Honeyman, Patty Jack, and Patty Petheram. From then on the class grew rapidly until 1943, when our membership was completed by the entrance of Anne Carter.

Although we are sorry to leave the Hall, we take with us the knowledge that we have received an education which has prepared us to meet and solve the problems of today.

HIGH SCHOOL HONORS OF 1943

The alumnae pin is awarded annually to the senior of good scholarship who has most actively contributed to the school life. This honor went to Peggy Smith, and honorable mention to Jane McMullen and Jane Norwood.

The medal for the best essay on a patriotic subject, awarded by the National Society of Colonial Daughters, was won by Patricia Pearson of the sophomore class. Honorable mention in this same contest was given in the following order to Sally Meyers, Pat Walker, Jean Edmonds, Nancy Pattullo, June Downs and Harriet Bouvy.

The Bishop's prize for outstanding work in Sacred Studies during the year went to Jane McMullen, whose name is also engraved on the Holford Cup. Honorable mention was given to Eleanor Coles, Jane Norwood and Patricia Waters.

In appreciation of loyal and generous help in accompanying on the piano throughout the year, prizes were given to Nancyann Henton and Geneva Summersett.

For faithful and generous help in playing the organ for Chapel services a book was given to Joyce Taylor.

St. Helen's Hall was again represented in the annual Anthology of High School Poetry. In the 1943 number honorable mention was given for a poem by Patricia Waters.

The Oregon Historical Society announced four winners in their essay contest. One of these winners was a Hall student. The fourth prize, a medal and a check for thirty dollars, went to Donna Jo Short.

The annual gift to the girl in the boarding department who on all occasions is most helpful and courteous went to Eleanor Coles.

Two seniors brought honor to their Alma Mater by placing in the first group in the Stanford achievement tests—Eleanor Coles and Nada Skidmore.

St. Helen's Hall is proud of the fact that its annual, the Delphic, has many times won honors in the national year book contest conducted by the Columbia Scholastic Press Association. Last year's book was awarded the gold medal for placing in the first class among the smaller private schools.

Two seniors this year finished their twelfth year at St. Helen's Hall. Nada Skidmore and Sally Jeffcott, to whom the school picture was awarded.

The school is proud of the fact that the editor of the Multnomah County Junior Red Cross paper for 1943 was Jane McMullen.

The college course in Child Care was open to high school seniors, who held their own very well. Laura Zimmerman and Jane Norwood were awarded prizes for outstanding work in the college course.

The Red Cross courses in First Aid and Nutrition at the school were well attended. For outstanding work in the Nutrition course honorable mention was given to Eleanor Coles, Jane Norwood, and Laura Zimmerman. Certificates for the Nutrition course were awarded to Eleanor Coles, Gloria Jokstad, Jane McMullen, Jane Norwood, Anne Stewart, Geneva Summersett, Elaine Taylor, Patricia Waters, and Laura Zimmerman.

Honors are awarded to those students who place academically in the highest tenth of the high school. These went in order of achievement to:

Yolanda Schultz
Eleanor Coles
Jane McMullen
Jean Edmonds

Patricia Waters
Sally Jeffcott
Jane Norwood

STAR SOULS

Sometimes a star
 Far away
 Can glisten and gleam
 Whitely,
 And speak of distant
 Beauty.
 The deep blue of its setting
 Is a velvet bowl
 Holding within it
 A dew-glisten.
 Stars suggest gently
 Evening,
 Twilight,
 Peace.
 May all my happiness be founded
 In that one bright shining
 Star;
 Tone of love and incarnation of hope.
 Soft blue sky protect that star from disillusion—
 I am that star.

VIRGINIA VAUGHAN, VI.

Delphic Contest—Honorable Mention

LOVE

Alone I stood,
 Free from mortal bonds and bars,
 Gazing lonely at the stars.

 Love ran down,
 A singing flame through space
 A golden melody of grace.

 Arm and arm,
 Now bound we stand,
 Just as love had always planned.

SUZANNE BOZORTH, VI.

TO MY DADDY

As I look at the stars so bright,
 I am reminded of one night,
 That I stood with a heavy heart
 And watched you depart
 Across the moonlit sea,
 To help to make all people free.

ROSEMARY ROTH, II.

THE SOPHISTICATION OF LITTLE BOYS

The sophistication of little boys is very funny. The social success is the one who can talk most like a hard cynical commando. The fashion-plate is apparently the one attired in quite dirty jeans, martyred sweater, socks of terrifying hue, and shoes completely covered by the humble soil.

My opinion is of little value, for I am a girl and older, but I believe my ten-year-old brother must be a great success. He is certainly dressed properly, and I know has a large stock of commando tactics. The only way to distinguish him from the other men-of-the-world is by his hazel eyes, very charming nose, and hair about the color of the dirt that modestly covers his forehead.

He doesn't talk much to outsiders; only to those other little boys who understand his language. He talks very skillfully with them. Once he organized an army, made himself general, and the other boys privates. Something must have upset this Hitlerism, for he soon was one general among many. In fact, they were all generals.

He has an unlimited supply of information about airplanes. Perhaps we could learn much from him, but he is frightfully longwinded. We have trained ourselves to listen with only one ear and insert "un-huh" occasionally. I suppose he will be an after-dinner speaker. At least then we won't have to insert the "un-huh", but only listen with one ear.

JEAN EDMONDS, IV.

THE GLEAMING LIGHT

I see many a bright color shield
That the enemy ne'er could mar
As I walk across the battlefield
Of years and years of war.

I see brave men who would not yield
To the tempests that would scar
As I walk across the battlefield
Of years and years of war.

As I wander through the burial grounds,
As I trudge through darkened vale,
The mist seems to lift; the light abounds;
It brightens this quiet dale,
And then I know that the scars have healed;
Again I see a star
As I walk across the battlefield
Of years and years of war.

JANET MACGREGOR, III.

THE FOREST

In the dim, still heart of the forest
There is a refuge close to God,
Where majestic trees will guard you;
Where angels seem to have trod.

Among the towering firs and pines,
A man is sure to feel
That every tree is a special friend,
That every wound will heal.

CAROLYN COLEMAN, III.

A SURPRISE DOG

One day I saw a little dog.
He was fat and I was fat, too.
I saw him when he saw me.
I liked him and he liked me.
He had big ears and so did I.
The dog I saw became my dog.

KIRKY FORS, Grade II.

THE DUCKEY

The little Duckey always said "Quack",
And he flaps his wings around his back.
Even the Duckey is bold
To swim in the pond that is cold.

When the Duckey floats around
He will always give a chirpy sound.
He will dive until he turns over on his back
Then gaily calls, "Quack, Quack, Quack".

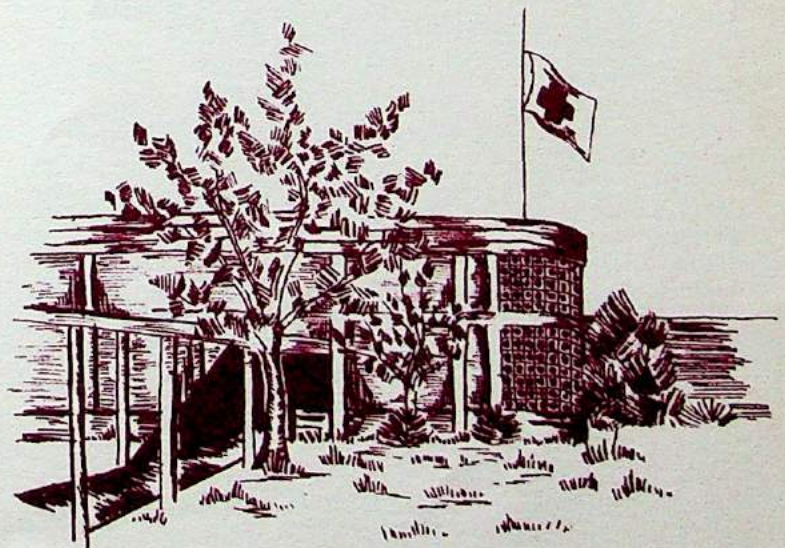

BARBARA BURKITT, Grade IV.

SNOW FLAKES IN THE KITCHEN

One day we made some popcorn in the kitchen. When we got through twirling it, we took the lid off of the top of the popcorn kettle and then the popcorn flew up, up in the air. One of them dropped on my head.

RICHARD HILLARY, Grade II.

STUDENT BODY

In September, the student body made certain that the coming year would be an active one by choosing efficient officers. Joan Lucas was elected President, and was assisted by Pat Walker as Vice-President, Jean Edmonds as Secretary, and Nancy Easter as Treasurer. Those who carried out their fine work in the spring were Nancy Easter, President; Ann Phetteplace, Vice-President, and Patty Bendshadler, Treasurer.

Although the main theme of the year was war work, the season's activities were dotted with brilliant speakers. Prominent among these was President Ham of Mt. Holyoke College, who gave us a view of colleges geared to a war-time tempo. The importance of the work we do at school now was emphasized by Mademoiselle A. Jeanne Saliel of Smith College, who spoke for the Free French. The life of our boys in North Africa was described to us by a young Lieutenant in the Army Medical Corps, stationed at Barnes Hospital. The British Consul, James McDonald, gave us an interesting talk at one of our assemblies on the difference war has made in the life of the English people. Another extremely instructive assembly was held when the Director of the Civic Theater, the Director of the Art Museum, and the Conductor of the Junior Symphony held an informal discussion of the war's effect on the Arts. Mrs. Esther Daymon Strong, who is Executive Secretary of the United Nations Association, spoke to us regarding the activities of that association and the various other post-war groups in the country. All of these talks were presented to us with the idea of giving the Hall girl a broad view of the importance of current world affairs.

The Seniors of this year everywhere are expected to become adult more quickly and more intelligently. We are aware that the courses and assemblies of this school year have helped us to realize the important role we will take in the post-war world.

FRONT SEAT—Nancy Easter, Patricia Lou Jones.
BACK SEAT—Anne Ferris, Joan Lucas.

WAR WORK

It was only right and to be expected that again this year war work proved to be the main activity of St. Helen's Hall. Most of our work was done through the American Junior Red Cross.

Each week many of the girls rolled bandages at the Wilcox Memorial Hospital, while others enjoyed helping at the United Seamen's Service Center.

At Thanksgiving, Christmas, Valentine's Day, and Easter, clever, appropriate table decorations and other favors were made for the men at Barnes Hospital.

Whole-heartedly and with a sense of humbleness, each Hall girl filled a gaily-papered Christmas box for service men overseas. These boxes contained such practical articles as soap, toothbrushes, and toothpaste, shoe strings, writing paper, pencils, and envelopes. Candy, cigarettes, small books, puzzles, and various kinds of games were also included.

With their War Bonds and Stamps, the high school and the lower school purchased three jeeps such as the one shown above. In this work Nancy Easter, Joan Lucas, and Patty Bendshadler played a prominent part, and its success is due to their hard work.

QUEEN—Jane Byerly.

PRINCESSES—Patty Jack, Gloria Jokstad, Patty Petheram, Anne Stewart, Joan Lucas, Laurelei Saylor.

MISTRESS OF CEREMONIES—Molly Clair.

MAY FETE

Each year the student body eagerly chooses seven pretty seniors for the traditional May Court.

Jane Byerly was this year's lovely Queen of the May. Her court princesses were Patty Petheram, Ann Stewart, Joan Lucas, Gloria Jokstad, Patty Jack, and Lee Saylor.

The smooth, yellow-green lawn and the dark-green shrubbery, the sunshine and the dappled shade made a pleasing setting for the royalty in their pastel-colored dresses. A tiny, excited girl from the lower school, wearing a light spring dress, carried the crown of fresh flowers to the Queen's throne. The student body and guests watched with happy admiration as Molly Clair, Mistress of Ceremonies, placed the crown on Jane's dark hair.

Following the crowning ceremony, Bobby Wollum, as court jester, and all the new girls provided various kinds of entertainment. With the serving of a light supper, this long-anticipated afternoon came to a close.

CALENDAR

As the spring term draws to a close, every girl finds her thoughts directed toward the coming graduation and then wandering back to the many activities of the past year.

The year began in the traditional way with Bishop Dagwell officiating at the opening Chapel service, September 8, 1943.

On October 13 the new girls were duly initiated with a great deal of laughter and fun on part of the student body at the Old Girl-New Girl Party.

The student body was officially organized shortly after with both student body and class officers being elected. The leaders of the boarding department were chosen as soon as the girls were well acquainted.

October 15th saw the boarders and many of the day students at the Jeannette McDonald concert. The girls all agreed that it was one of the best concerts of the season.

The first dance of the year, given by the boarding department, was held September 24. Hill cadets were invited.

On October 27, the teachers held a reception for the parents and friends of the students. They were assisted by the Juniors and Seniors. This was the first formal affair of the year and the teachers announced that the attendance was the largest in years.

Hill Military Academy gave its first dance of the year on October 29. Pumpkins, fortune-tellers, and eerie decorations provided the Halloween atmosphere.

On the same night members of the Junior class spent an enjoyable evening at a dinner dance given by Joanna Millet.

On November 23rd the long-anticipated Thanksgiving vacation began. The girls returned full of vitality and began plans for the Christmas vacation.

December 10th was the date of the big student body dance of the year. A huge tree decorated with blue lights and silver rain carried out the Christmas theme. Many members of the armed forces were present at the dance.

The day Christmas vacation started the College Drama Club presented a beautiful Mystery Play, which was attended by the whole school.

On February 3rd the spring term student body elections were held.

February and March will be remembered for the wonderful speakers they brought. These speakers gave the girls a view of the international world situation.

On March 1st the Alumnae Association sponsored an excellent reading by Mrs. Mortimer Hartwell.

The spring season was officially ushered in by a dance sponsored by the Junior class on April 22, the Saturday after spring vacation ended.

Skip day was spent by the Seniors doing exactly what they wanted, and the school was a dank and musty tomb without them.

Royalty took over the school on May Fete day. Queen Jane IV presided over her court, who were dressed in charming pastel formals.

The last week of school was so full of last-minute activities and parties that the Seniors had no time to be sad. They will always remember the Prom and the impressive Baccalaureate service at Trinity Church.

The crowning event of the whole year was graduation on May 26th. This exquisite and beautiful ceremony is especially planned to be an unforgettable experience.
