

LEGEND DELPHIC

LEGEND DELPHIC 1978-79

VOL. 11

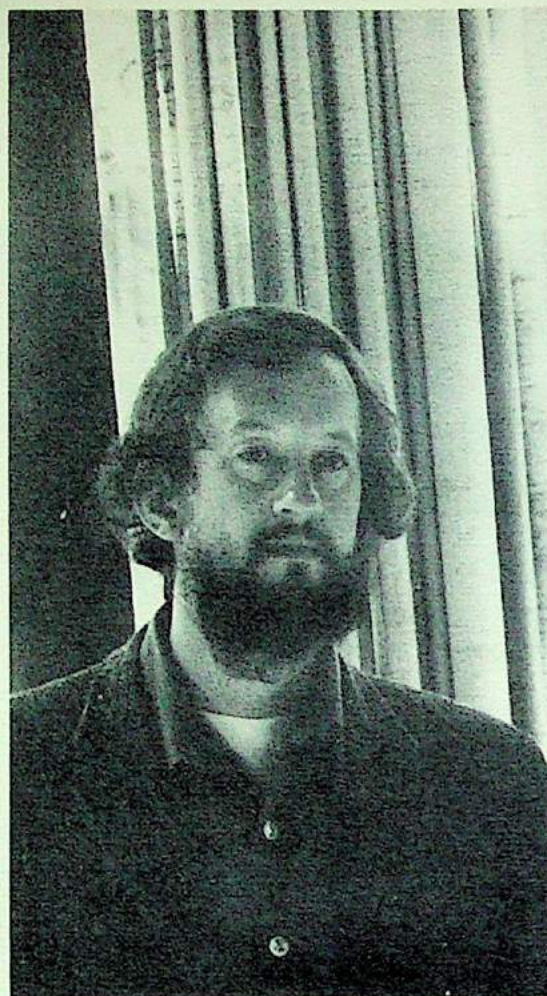

OREGON EPISCOPAL SCHOOL
PORTLAND, OREGON

For the past four years this man has been an integral part of many peoples' lives, especially the class of '79. Whether it was Canned Food Drives, Bake Sales, or Treasure Hunts he was nothing but a big help. He has a family, teaches Spanish, Religious Thought, supervises the dorms, and at the same time, in his own amazing way, always finds time for his students. In 1977, when there was no one to run the dorms, he stepped in and became director. With thirty-nine more kids in his family, this man still had time to listen and help anyone with anything.

He is kind, loving, honest and determined to give his all. He won't command you, he'll only ask you. There's nothing better than to start the day off with a smile. HE always has one. Then came class meetings and it was nice to have someone in charge who respected you and whom you in turn could respect.

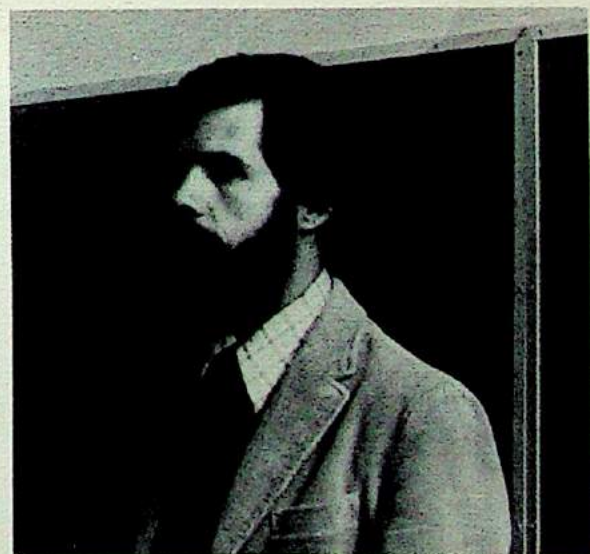

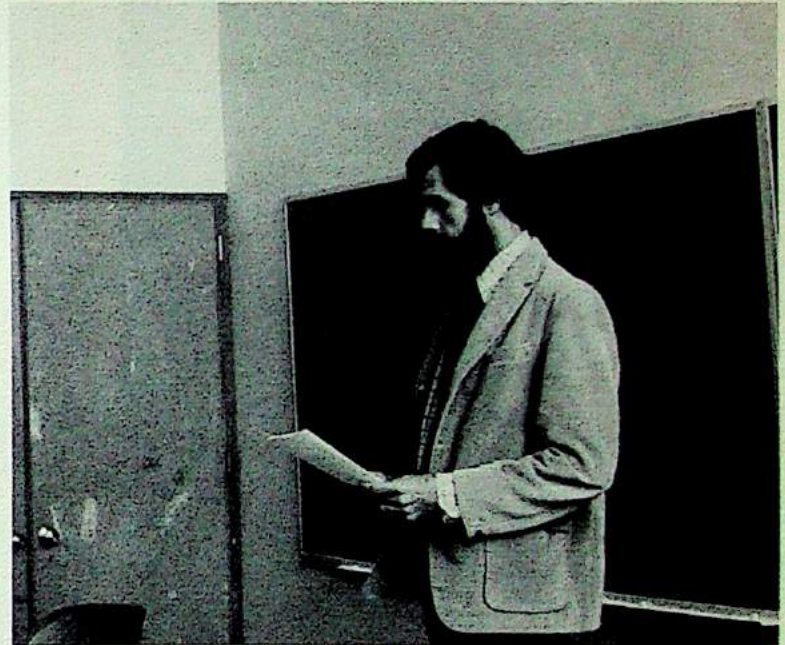

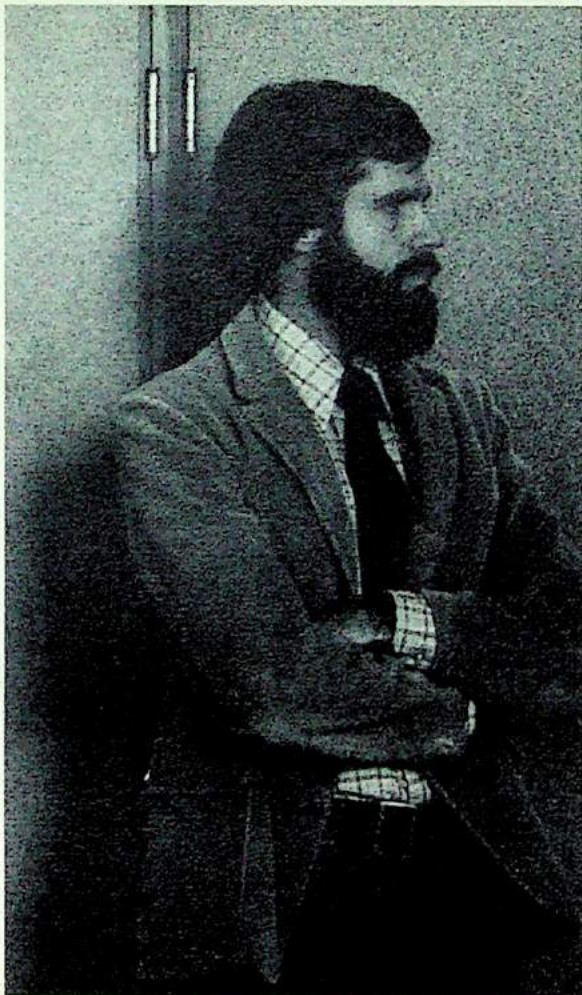

He is challenging towards his classes, but willing to understand when something can't be done. There is no one personality so full of life, love, and self-determination, as this incredible soul, it is so very hard to put into words what Mr. Streight means to so many of us.

To this man the only sincere act of kindness that the body of O.E.S. can do for him is to dedicate this book, with deepest love and warmth, to him. To you Mr. Streight, this book, to you David Streight, our unending love.

Upper School Dedication

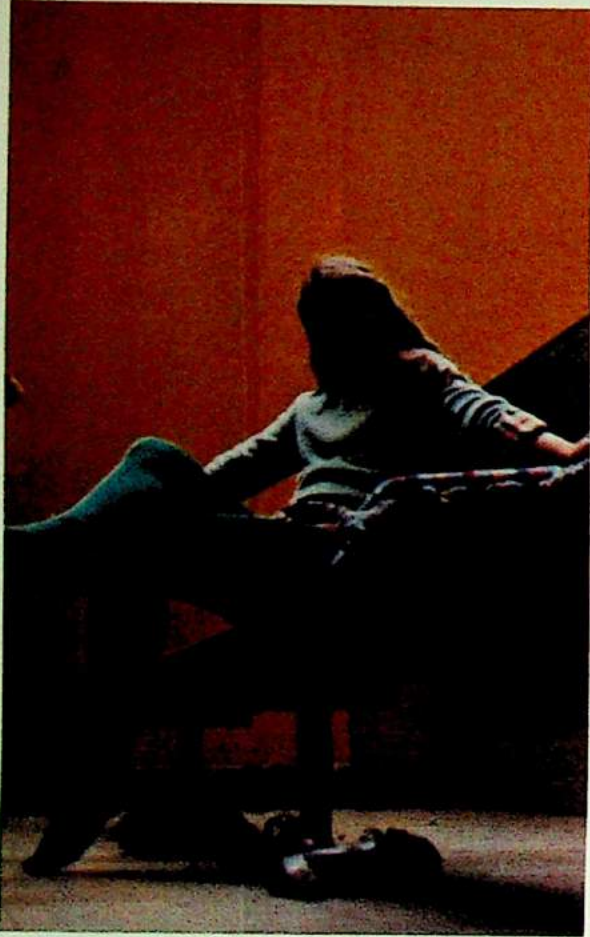

We all knew, from the moment we first saw him almost two years ago, that he was special. He is young, innovative, and well-informed about the subjects he teaches. But he's more than that. He is the kind of guy who is always free for a talk about anything. Whether it's about trouble you're having in one of his classes, or if you're interested in who was on Saturday Night Live last week. He has a great sense of humor, and will laugh at all of your jokes - even if they're not funny. (He's very tactful.) It's hard to be both a teacher and a friend. Some teachers don't even try. But this man tries - and really succeeds. Whether it's the Junior Varsity basketball team, or the C.L.B.'s - he's thought of in highest regard. So that is why the Middle School Yearbook section is dedicated to our beloved Mr. C - Gary Crossman.

Lower Right: Sarah Geary searches for something to write about while . . .

Like the city of Portland gets its news through The Oregonian, The Oregon Journal and others, the O.E.S. student body is blessed with their own newspaper. The O.E.S. newspaper staff gets out all the latest news, along with who's who, crossword puzzles, speeches and an assortment of art work. The paper's editor, Cathy Leitch, is hard working and active. She puts in late nights writing her extensive and informative articles, editing someone else's hard work, or typing up articles for the next deadline. Advisor Julie Stevens assists tremendously in the running of the paper. The dedicated reporters, their editor and advisor are responsible for putting out what is, in many people's minds, one of the finest papers yet.

YEARBOOK

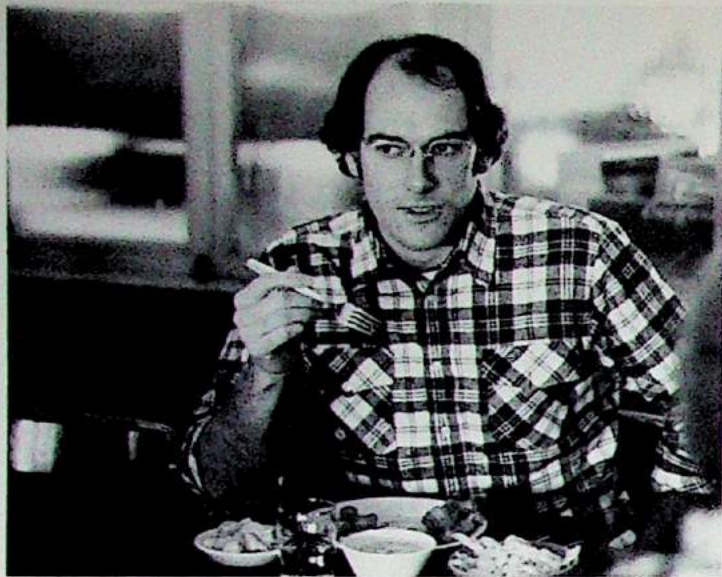

If you ever find yourself wandering through the halls downstairs, near Dr. Sipples' office and the Mary Rodney room during PANYC, do not become terrified by the screams of frustration or howls of enthusiasm. "I need a pencil," "Are the contact sheets in the dark room?", "We don't have copy for this page, someone do it now!", "You guys, the deadline was yesterday, get to work, toute-de-suite!".

General Manager Rob Holden, spends most of his time doing those tedious editor jobs like worrying about finances, making the seniors are on time for pictures, and generally encouraging the staff that "Yes, there will be a yearbook." Helen Yeaton, head technician and chief, is constantly organizing the staff and making sure we met the deadlines. Constantly with pen in hand, she's either "oking" layouts, making lists, editing copies or assigning "fun" jobs and errands. Lorne Johnson, our fearless leader, deserves much credit for putting up with us and being the great overseer that he is.

MOTHER COURAGE

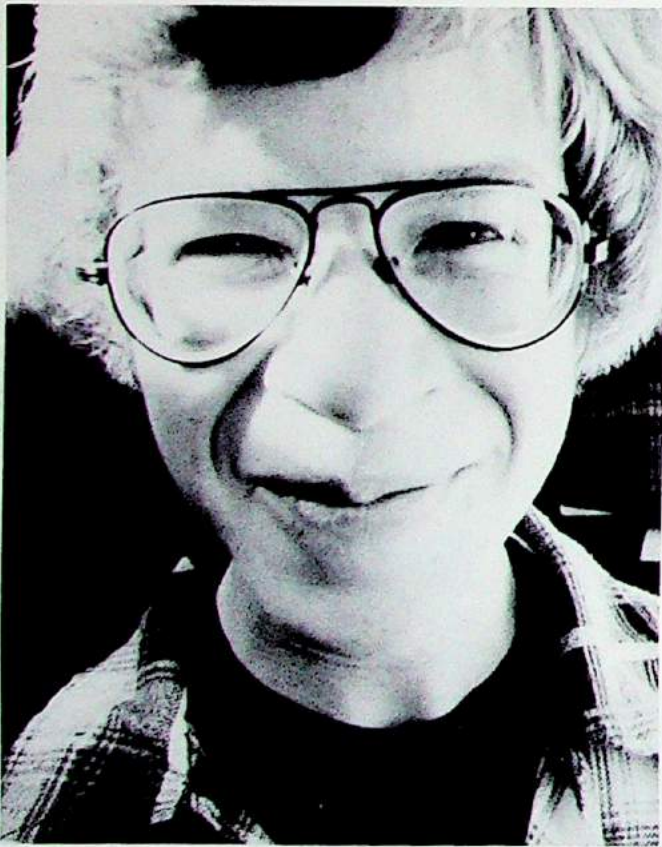

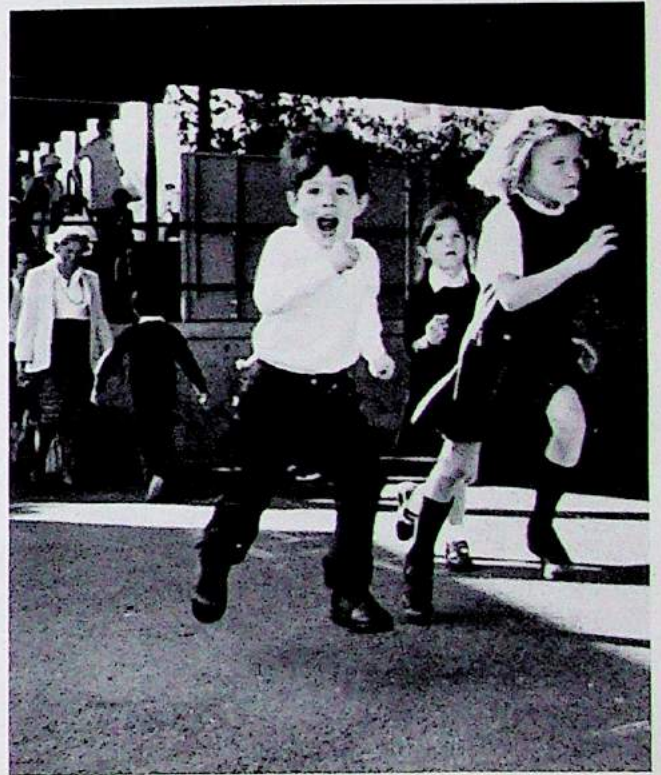

During the fall of 1978 the students and faculty of OES were treated to an afternoon performance of Brecht's "Mother Courage and Her Children." EDITOR'S LETTER

Taking on the task of being the Yearbook Editor was the biggest responsibility I have had to date. I loved doing it. I learned a lot, not only about how to put a book together but I also learned more about other people, especially in tense situations.

I really want to take this opportunity to thank all the people who did more to put the book together than I did. I love ya' all!

Now that I am moving on to continue my growth in other places and in other ways, I realize how much this school has done for me. I now can take on all the responsibilities of my life and direct myself to where I want to go. The things I learned while doing something such as being editor of this yearbook, will always be a cherished experience. No one can relate to what goes into something like this until they step in my shoes and follow my footprints and of all those before me.

My gratitude is never ending to those who helped me through this experience of being editor. Special thanks to Lois McAlister for putting up with all that extra typing.

Now it's time for me to take my leave. I hope I left something for the School to benefit from - what it is, I don't know. Take all that you as students and faculty and all others have here at OES and use it to make a life worth all the living possible.

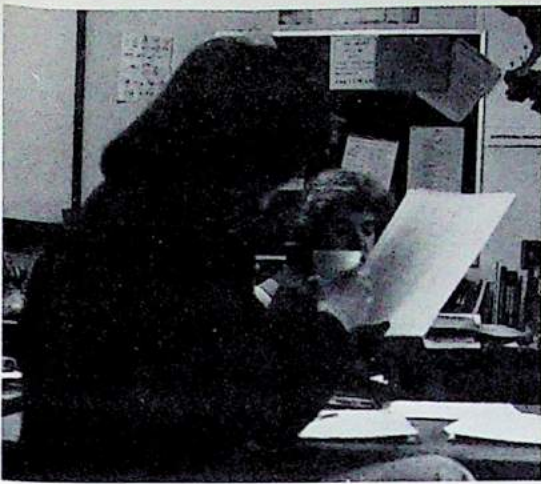

Thanks and love always,

Helen Yeaton
1978-79 Yearbook Editor

STUDENT COUNCIL

Energetic and determined President Clenton Richardson led this year's Student Council to new heights in the realm of school politics. The student body enjoyed another Crazy Day, an extremely successful Can Food Drive and several dances. Deciding that this was the year to do something about school spirit, the Student Council held a Pep Rally, a school color day and sold "Mean Green Falcon Power" buttons. It was a successful year for the Student Council and the students who benefited from the Council's wish to be more active in the school's life.

The Boys Varsity Soccer team was a mixture of groans, smiles, laughter and depression. The team started off the season on fire by winning four, out of their first five games which included a first place trophy won in an eight team tournament. In that tournament, O.E.S. beat a team 2-1 which proceeded to advance to the state finals in that same season. But unfortunately, the team soon lost its momentum as the season progressed.

The team included some great individual talent, namely Tim Dibbins and Todd Husband who were some of the best material in the state. The season also marked the entrance of Portland Timber forward, Willie Anderson as co. - coach, joining Mr. Dibbins on the staff. His respect between the team.

When there is a team that is held together by a mutual interest, a special bond that says, "We are one. We can and will do it together," you have a team that is inseparable. This is the O.E.S. girls varsity soccer team. It is difficult to put into words how hard each of the girls worked. Everyone concentrated on their own skills. Through all of the individual hard work put in, the end result was a team who all wanted and strived for the best. They never backed away from their opposition, they were willing to take anyone on, they met every challenge with full force.

Behind every team there is said to be a good, caring, hardworking and friendly coach. We had two such individuals. With their help and guidance, the team was always improving. Without their help, our unique and special team wouldn't have been possible, thank you Kris Hatcher and Karla Heckrodt.

VOLLEYBALL

The Volleyball team was a perfect example of determination and drive. They practiced hard every day after school and on weekends occasionally. They helped one another out. They never had anything negative to say to each other, this team really had it together as far as being a TEAM. If someone was having a bad day, everyone else on the team would do their best to help them out. Just watching this team perform, it was obvious they were Working hard, putting into action all the things that had been taught them. They had a good year, they were a strong team and that is half the battle.

This team was led by the strong and determined Jane Snyder. She put in many days and long hours into this team, and every minute showed.

BOYS' VARSITY BASKETBALL

The 1978-79 OES Varsity basketball team proved to be a successful one. Six returning lettermen and a good crop of JV players from the previous year led to the success of the team. The starting team boasted forwards Pat Ferguson and Dorian Kappler, center Shahrum Bahmanyar, guards Dave Duff and scramblin' Kevin Fromm. The bench carried seniors Mahmood Sabahi and Rob Holden, juniors Todd Husband, Russell Janney, Barry Daigle and Jeff Kohnstamm. Unfortunately, superstars Dave Duff and Rob Holden sustained knee injuries at the beginning of the season and were out for a month. With the scoring punch of Dorian and Pat, who scored 33 and 20 points respectively in a pre-season romp over Jewell, the team posted many wins this season.

GIRLS' VARSITY BASKETBALL

The 1978-79 girls' varsity basketball team was strong in both skill and depth. The team won the first trophy ever won by an O.E.S. girls' basketball team by taking second place in the 1978 O.E.S. Christmas Tournament. This year's team was made up of seniors Helen Yeaton, Cathy Leitch and Vassar Byrd, juniors Liz Draper, Mary Lee Goldsmith and Ashley Kirkman, sophomores Michelle Fromm and Sarah Stephenson, and freshmen Tori Brock and Angel Ellison. Carla Heckrodt coached the team to one of its most successful years, not necessarily in terms of wins, but in terms of spirit and improvement. Our bench always had something to add to the game and our faithful manager Jami Jacobson always had witty and encouraging comments to make. All in all, the effort that made our team ultimately work came down to total determination and dedication by all concerned.

JUNIOR VARSITY BASKETBALL

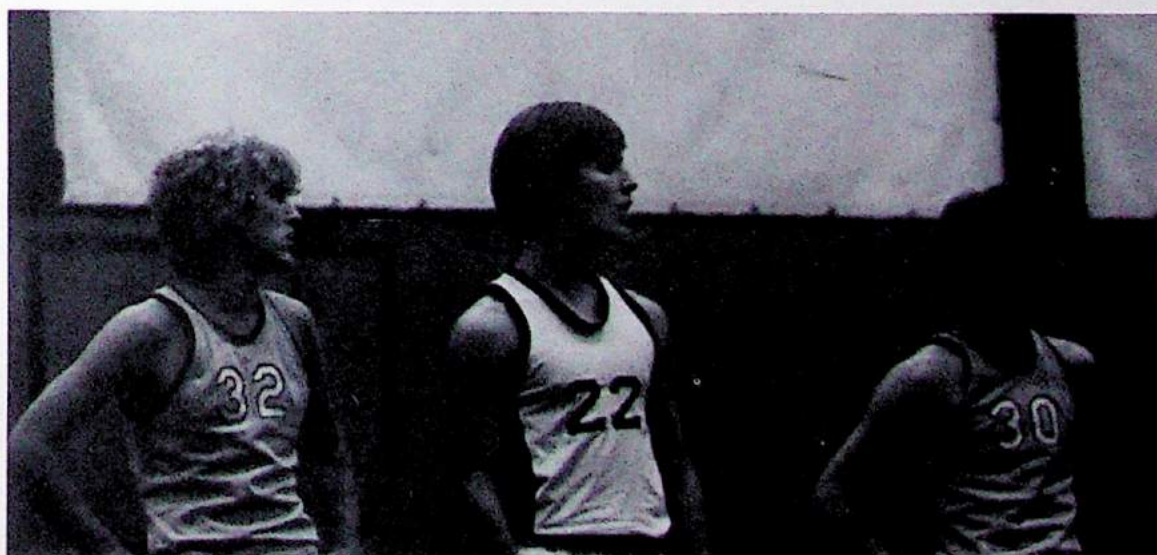

The Junior Varsity basketball season was a very competitive one. In every game the other team had to look out for Steve Ritchie's aggressive moves to the basket, and Mike Fry driving to the hoop with Barry Daigle ready to pick up the rebounds. The Junior Varsity squad had Barry Daigle at center, Steve Ritchie at center and forward, Mahmood "Butch" Sabahi, Pat McCally and Steve Eckhardt were the other forwards. Ali Omoomy, Mike Fry, Thad Selby, Ali Tabatabai and Paul Lyshaug were the guards. With these young players the team had a good season and hopes for an even better one next year.

FENCING

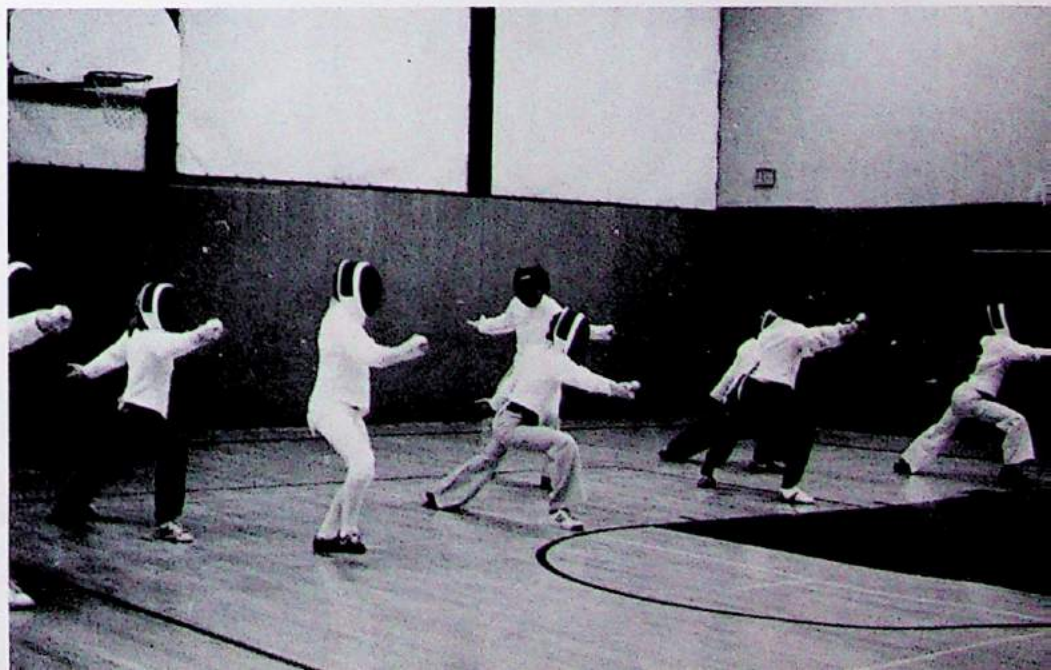

Where the temperatures never change, there is always yellow light, (that is sometimes thought of as artificial sun, or commonly known as floodlights), and a perpetual breeze, caused by moving bodies, you can find in this place called a GYM, the fencing class and sometimes the team of reknowned fencers.

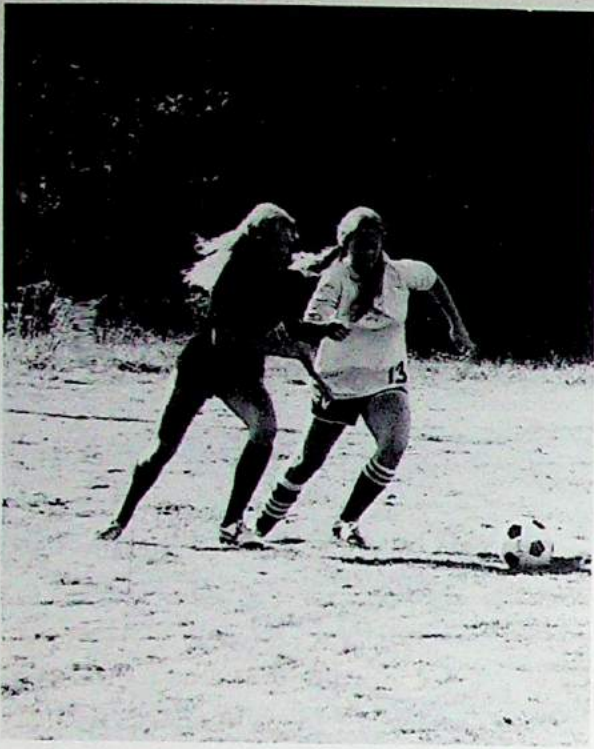

Not too often but it is known to happen, a student could be found fighting off an attacking Saber . . . tooth. Actually the Sabers are what the tools used in fencing are called. For two terms this year there was a class in Saber along with Beginning and Intermediate Foil fencing being taught at the same time in the winter term.

Thanks to the helpful coaching and assistance from Mr. Alex Begunet, a fencing master from Toulouse, France and Colleen Olney, the classes were a definite learning experience for all those students involved. Along with the class, a team was formed. Through and through, fencing at OES was a big success this year.

Shahram Bahmanyar

It takes so much to be a full human being that there are very few who have the enlightenment or the courage to pay the price . . . One has to abandon altogether the search for security and reach out to the risk of living with both hands. One has to embrace the world like a lover. One has to accept pain as a condition of existence. One has to court doubt and darkness as the cost of knowing. One needs a will stubborn in conflict, but apt always to total acceptance of every consequence of living and dying.

The only guide to a man is his conscience; the only shield to his memory is the rectitude and sincerity of his actions. It is very imprudent to walk through life without this shield, because we are so often mocked by the failure of our hopes; but with this shield, however the Fates may play, we march always in the ranks of honour.

Let my deeds
Show in the eyes of my fellow man.
Let my extended hand
Have the strength of ten
When it serves to lift the souls of men.
Let my voice
Be music to the ears
Of the lonely and frightened.
Let my eyes
See the needs of those who are too timid - or
Too proud to ask.
Let my ears
Hear the far-away cry for help - of
The weak.
Let my heart
Interpret languages
I have never heard before.
If I do these things -
Then will I be at peace with the world -
And maybe ... the world will be at peace.

The thoughts are long and deep
Maybe big even small

Yet I look back
And remember
The good times and bad
The smiles and laughs

Tim is now and was

The friends still are
I ever-wander the future
And sure for one thing are hopes
So I build a castle
Slowly but surely
And once completed
The time for enjoyment is but small

Pleasure must be here
Enjoyment compassion
And love

I set out once again to build a castle
And look ahead
I consider
Another castle to be built

As I go along
Each becomes easier to build

Memories are with us
But memories can help us
I will never lose touch with my friends

I look ahead
And consider
Another castle to be built . . .

Perspective, I realize, is the essence of life
 Broken down it may be classified as such-
 Those that see Life merely for its gains,
 Rewards handed out for quotas of good deeds made
 Seeing only that which will reap in a profit
 Smiling through clean smiles that issue cuts
 Wounding others to the quick
 But the others-having felt the cuts, cast them off
 Their armour is the goodness that fills the heart
 Their wisdom is like the quiet that comes in the End
 Like dust settling out upon the horizon at sunset.
